WORTHY OF ATTENTION.

Saturday May 1st, in the year of grace, 1892, a Republican State Convention was held in Virginia City. Among the delegates to that Convention were Harrison organ grinders, Federal officials, and mint employees. The sentiment of the delegates who represented the masses of the Republican party was strong against Harrison, and the following among other resolutions were off red:

That we condemn the Republican party of the Eastern States and the Administration of President Harrison insofar as they have failed to accomplish the complete reorganization of silver and to enact laws providing for the free and unlimited coinage of the metal.

That the restoration of silver to the place it occupied previous to the passage of the Mint Act of 1873 is essential to the prosperity of the country and paramount to all other considerations.

Those resolutions were adopted without a dissenting voice, the organ grinders and Federal officials in the convention denouncing the better part of valor, offering no objection. It is therefore, straight Republican doctrine in Nevada to condemn the administration of President Harrison and the Republican party of the Eastern States, insofar as they have failed to reorganize silver, and to make the restoration of silver the paramount issue of the campaign.

As the declaration of principles or party is to that party what the articles of faith are to a church, the attention of the organ grinders is directed to the matter. They should not play different tunes now from what they permitted without protest to be placed on the program in the State Convention at Virginia City. Eastern Republicans renominated Harrison and if they and the Administration deserve condemnation early in May they have done nothing since to merit the approval of Nevada Republicans in June.

THE SILVER LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Silver Leagues throughout the State should make arrangements to send delegates to the State Convention, which it is suggested should be held at Reno. Every member of a Silver Club will be entitled to a seat in the convention. Transportation companies, doubtless will give persons attending the convention half rates as they did the Republicans and Democrats. The time for action has arrived. It is evident that Wall Street will make no concessions until it is forced to do so, therefore all true friends of silver should unite and compel the gold men to deal fairly with the principal industry of the State.

The only difference which Wall Street permits on the financial question in the Harrison and Cleveland platforms is for one to approve and the other to demand the use of gold and silver as money. Such twaddling on what Republicans and Democrats in their State platforms say is the paramount issue of the campaign, is intended only for deceptive purposes, and neither organ grinders nor spoonmen can convince the people that it has any more significance now than it did four years ago. The League at its meeting Monday night will take action in this convention and, if deemed advisable, invite all the clubs in the State to send representative men to attend it.

SPOILS THE SOLE CONTENTION.

The Silver State, whose editor recently visited Washington and saw and heard how the country is being run in the interest of the spoilsmen regardless of consequences to the masses of the people, is telling some truth in plain language. Commenting upon the contention at Minneapolis it says:

"If there was any argument necessary to convince an average American citizen of the necessity of a third party, the Minneapolis spoils of the American gold bug syndicate has furnished it. Nine hundred representatives of the Republican party, with twenty-five thousand bowlers, hosiery and factional disputes hired for the occasion to furnish lung power for the party machine, are engaged in fearful combat over the all-absorbing and vital question as to which particular faction shall the spoils of office fall. There is no contest as to principles or national politics. On these all agree with practical unanimity. The sole contention is as to the distribution of the Federal patronage. The motto of the whole howling pack is, 'Party before country and spoils before party.'"

WORSE THAN A BLIZZARD.

The Carson Tribune, which has been a straight Republican paper, advocating the election of Bartine to Congress and by no means friendly to the silver movement in commenting on the nomination of Harrison, says:

"The office-holders and money kings have triumphed and the people's lot has been relegated to the shades of private life. Harrison's nomination fell like a wet blanket on Nevada. Here, in Carson, the banner Republican precinct of the State, not a single voice was heard when the result was made known. An icy chilliness pervaded the party ranks and the Democrats jeered the Republicans for their discomfiture."

The Denver News says there is no middle ground upon the financial question. It is four years more of the policy of Harrison or Cleveland or it is the reorganization of silver. It is politics manufactured by the bankers of Wall Street and London or it is our homes, our business, our firesides and families and our mining industry.

The latest returns from the Oregon election give Chamberlain (Democrat) 200 majority for Attorney General. There are five counties to hear from, but these will probably increase Chamberlain's majority.

LETTERS FROM THE OLD WORLD.

An American's Observations in Foreign Lands.

Dear Son and Daughter, Carson City, Nevada:—We passed through London, Paris, Lyons and Rome to Naples; there took a steamer for Alexandria, where we arrived March 4th in the morning. On landing we seemed to have stepped into

A NEW WORLD;

We were surrounded by a new race of people, speaking a new language, with new customs, new habits and new notions, all pushing, rushing, shouting and gesticulating after a new style, so that for a time it seemed quite bewildering. By standing still, going slow and acting wisely than we felt, we mastered the situation; procured a carriage and were driven to a hotel, where we had time to adjust our ideas to the sudden introduction to eastern life. Then we took a three hours' drive through and around the city, going to the old ruins, to the beautiful gardens, along the great canal to the old tomb, through the long streets occupied by the bazaars and through the open, noisy markets. Here we first met the huge, ugly, repulsive-looking camel and its enormous load; there was also a strange mixture of nationalities; there were representatives from all European countries, and all Eastern except China, who made a perfect babel of tongues as they talked, shouted and yelled, each in his own tongue, which made a strange impression on our untrained ears, but we were reasonably good scholars and made good progress for the first day.

ALONG THE NILE.

In the afternoon we started by rail for Cairo, and we were soon out on the valley of the beautiful Nile—which was a complete surprise, for it far surpassed in beauty our ideal, highly colored as they were. We were fortunate in the time of our visit; the weather was that of May or early June in our country. The wheat was in full head, barley just heading, sugar cane ripe and being cut, vegetables in all stages of growth and perfection. Hundreds of people everywhere, out in the fields and gardens at work, with hundreds of camels and donkeys in the fields, along the highways and canal banks, loaded with green clover going to market, while along the canals were seen the white sails of the freight boats, all presenting a charming picture of real eastern life. In many places the valley reminds one of some of our most beautiful prairie scenes in the northwest, with the addition of magnificent groves of the stately palm tree. In fact it is hard to exaggerate when speaking of the Nile valley as seen under the most favorable circumstances.

AT THE GREAT PYRAMID.

The next morning after arriving in Cairo we started in a carriage for the great pyramid. Miss Havens of Chicago, a missionary to China, accompanied us. We drove along a beautiful avenue some distance up the banks of the Nile, then the avenue crossed the valley westward to the great wonder. At first sight there is a feeling of disappointment; it looks low and squat; but as we come near, its huge proportions stand out against the blue sky. When at the base my friends thought it impossible for me to attempt the ascent; the old Arab sheik also shook his head dubiously; Miss Havens also protested, but I started, made the ascent, and was second on top with less fatigue than any. Tourists have described the scene from the top so often that I will not repeat it, simply saying it is a picture not to be forgotten in a life time. We also visited the Sphinx and the Alabaster Temple near it, recently discovered, like the pyramid a wonder and a mystery possibly never to be understood. We came down to the valley and took lunch as other parties were coming out to make the ascent in the heat of the day instead of the cool of the early morning.

CAIRO.

We spent a day in going through the great museum in Cairo, driving through the clean, beautiful streets, thronged by people from every nation under heaven, with a strange mingling of extreme western and extreme eastern life. The bicycle rider went whirling by the donkey rider, with the donkey boy running behind; the fine coach and four whirled by the huge camel with its long swinging stride; the western lady with head erect and open face faced crowded the veiled and shrouded eastern beauty in the fashionable bazaar; each plying the other for being so bewildered. So it was in almost every phase of everyday life seen in this truly wonderful city. We left Cairo by the Ismailia railroad, passing through a portion of the cotton fields of Egypt now becoming celebrated, and reached the Suez canal at Ismailia, where we took steamer to Port Said, stopped there a days then took steamer for Jaffa, where we landed the morning of the 8th.

A Bushel of Pills.

And every one wants to stick fast in the throat, and feels as though they did stick somewhere. Away with them and take Simmons Liver Regulation. One-half teaspoonful is a dose, and it goes down pleasantly. You'll find it a mild laxative, with no gripping and does not debilitate. It quickly relieves the system of malarial poison, and cures Constipation, Indigestion, Bloatingness and Sick Headache.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not buy anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELLA A. GORP, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

THE FACTOR OF SAFETY.

Cheapness Not an Inducement for Investment in All Cases.

The greatest bridge of the ages is to be built across North river. Any reputable engineer can plan the bridge; but yet only the greatest genius can plan a bridge that will prove a financial success. It will be worth millions to the board of directors to have found the one or two engineers in the world, who can plan it so that it will be neither too cheap nor too costly.

The difficulty of the problem does not lie in building a bridge that will do a certain fixed amount of work under certain fixed conditions. Nor does it consist in building a bridge that will be certain to stand any unforeseen strain put upon it.

But it will consist in securing safety at the least possible cost. The element that will require the greatest knowledge of exact weights and strains, together with a splendid imaginative comprehension of the precise limit of unforeseen weights and unknown strains, is the element in the engineer's capacity that will settle the success or failure of what he will build.

IF HE STOP A HAIK'S BREADTH This side a proper calculation of the factor of safety against the possible forces of nature, the time is sure to come when the whole structure will be a fatal mass of wreck and ruin.

If he, out of too much timidity, make the bridge really stronger than need be for the most strain that will be put upon it, he is saddling the company with a useless load of cost and expense, which in this case would probably prove its financial failure.

Again, this factor of safety, as it is called, will probably be the costliest part of the bridge. After the architect has provided for the total amount of traffic over the bridge, the probabilities are that he will count upon double the cost of this part, to provide for the factor of safety.

It is precisely so in Life Insurance and in purchasing it. Cheap Life Insurance cannot possibly provide for the factor of security. Under ordinary circumstances and at certain times, companies which have gone upon the cheap basis may seem to be sound and sensible. They may allure the uninformed or unwary to take stock in them, by a bold appeal to their seeming economy.

But any man is simply foolish who does not calculate an existence of at least fifty years for any company wherein he wishes to insure. During those fifty years there are sure to be, as experience uniformly proves, epidemics, panics, probably wars, and even revolutions, which are as certain to destroy all insurance companies not planned to meet just such crises, as the NORTH RIVER BRIDGE Would be sure to crash to its ruin if its engineer, for the purpose of building it cheaply, stopped in his calculations this side the inevitable effects of the tremendous, although rare, tests arising from the forces of nature.

Every sensible man who thinks of buying Life Insurance should ask the question, and accept nothing less than actual demonstration, "What is the FACTOR OF SAFETY in this company?"

It will not do to trust to "guess work" or "taking chances" or "glib promises;" he should demand evidence.

But he should go further than this. He should also demand some fair proof that he is not buying his security against panics or sudden crises at too high rates.

There is just as much truth in the statement that one can pay too much for Life Insurance, as that one can pay too little, although of course the latter is much worse than the former.

A company worked on too cheap a basis is sure to give nothing back for good money but delusive talk; whereas, a too expensive company has something to fall back upon, in the way of unnecessary surplus.

But in either case a blunder is committed and the insurer suffers.

Very well, then, how is one to find out the best way to buy the factor of safety, at the precise point of least cost?

Certainly the board of directors in building the North river bridge are not going to take the first engineer who comes along with promises of this sort or that.

Roebing built the East river bridge, the greatest suspension bridge in the world; but not until he had successfully demonstrated his ability to do so by building bridges of the sort before.

The board of directors of the North river bridge will listen to no engineer whose experience, knowledge and character are not well known to them.

Precisely so in purchasing this factor of safety in Life Insurance without paying too much for it. It is not a matter of loud claims, far promises, great talk. It is a matter to be settled only by facts, by proofs.

It makes no difference what any company claims it can do, its worth depends upon what it HAS done as well.

Life Insurance is no longer a thing of chance, guess work, untried experiments. It is a thing of history. True, great and splendid achievements lie ahead of it yet. New conditions demand new enterprises. The North river bridge will come because the conditions are demanding it, and it will be unlike any bridge ever before built in point of novelty and magnificence. But yet it will be a bridge and it will be built along lines of law laid down by experience in bridge building since the days of Xerxes.

The laws of sound, and yet not too costly Life Insurance, are well known to all insurance experts. The factor of safety is a calculable one and its cost also.

They have worked themselves out in experience. The laws of the establishment of the factor of safety at just the right cost are extremely simple, although enormously difficult to apply.

The first law is this: Sufficient available capital or surplus to withstand extraordinary shocks or assaults.

The second law is this: Making that capital, while available, earn the greatest amount of money consistent with security.

To create this capital, Life Insurance must cost the insurer something more than that which would be enough to pay mere running assessments for deaths.

To make it return its full value to the insured, it must be all the time earning adequate dividends for the insured.

The accumulation of this capital and handling it to the greatest earning capacity, demand the highest possible financial ability, as well as vast experience, if the capital be a great one.

There is no Life Insurance company in existence that has applied these two laws so successfully as the Mutual Life of New York.

The man who desires to purchase the factor of safety at precisely the right cost—neither too cheap nor too dear—falls to do so who fails to insure in the Mutual, and for these two reasons among many others: First, because it has the largest capital in the world; secondly, because in proportion to the cost of its premiums, it is simply a matter of record that it makes the greatest percentage of actual returns to its policyholders.

In short, in proportion to the amount of money that it has received or is receiving to-day, it has actually made the greatest returns to those who have taken its policies.

This fact is a fact of record, and persistently demonstrates that in the Mutual Life the safest and most inexpensive insurance is to be purchased.

No wonder, then, that in the course of Life Insurance history it has become the greatest financial corporation of the sort in the world.

It proposes to remain so. Its experience, knowledge and character are such as to make it certain that it will keep in the van for generations to come.

No new problems in Life Insurance will arise, nor any new conditions of advancing civilization present themselves for which it will not remain the best equipped Life Insurance corporation of the times, where security can be purchased at precisely the right cost.

A Social Science Party. Bright and early yesterday morning Gus Koppe with a four-in-hand Nevada tally-ho drove down Virginia street on the keen trot on his way to Virginia City. He had with him a large crowd of somewhat sleepy scientists, who scarcely two hours before had quitted the ball room, but whose young spirits and wisdom loving natures were bent on exploring the lower levels of the Comstock. We have no doubt that the store of geological data that will be obtained by this party will, with the original opinions and newly formed theories that may be formulated prove a valuable addition to the science of geology. Through the kindness of Superintendent Lyman of the C. & C. they were accompanied through the Con. Virginia by a guide. The party consisted of Mr. Kitto and Miss Loukey of Verdi, Frank Norcross and Miss Morton of Carson, Fritz Frey and Miss Echo Leder, C. A. Norcross and Miss Mary Snow and the Misses Bonker. They returned about 9 o'clock last night and report having had an exceedingly enjoyable time. Though a little sleepy and tired from a prolonged session of society and science, they all appeared ready and willing for another party.

Baptist Church—Preaching at 11 A. M., as usual. Children's Day exercises at 7:30 in the evening. Everybody invited.

The Commencement Ball. The commencement party was a pleasant success Friday evening. It was one of the largest attended University dances ever given in Reno. There were a large number of visitors from different portions of the State. It was rendered jolly by excellent music and the large crowd was loath to depart, even when the rose hued east was lighting the pale moon to rest beyond the snowy summits of the Sierras.

The Truckee Knights Attached to the regular V. & T. train last night was a special car containing the K. of P. Lodge, No. 38, of Truckee. They spent the day yesterday in making a tour of the mines in Virginia City. They consisted of a large crowd of ladies and gentlemen. A unique feature of the jolly crowd is a life and drum corps consisting of twelve little maidens. They received the Grand Lodge prize for the best turn out.

For a fine evening lunch go to Wisconsin. For fine boots and shoes go to H. F. Pavola. Fine eastern hams and Bacon at W. S. Bailey's. D. M. Ferry & Co.'s garden seeds at McCullough's. “August Flower”

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says: "My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."

Dogs That Can Trot.

Dogs that can trot in fast time are somewhat rare, but Canada holds one and the United States possesses another. The result is that there has arisen talk of an international race between the two rapid canines.

The dog that trots under the British flag is named Doc, and is owned and driven by Willie Ketchum, of Brighton, Ont. Doc is an old campaigner, and has trotted exhibition heats at races and agricultural fairs for several years. He pulls a tiny sulky, and on ice or a hard track he can trot half a mile in 12.5, and a quarter in 45 seconds. Doc is rather a small setter, but his stride is said to be extraordinary. From two to four furlongs is the distance the Canadian wonder usually covers.

The proud upholder of the stars and stripes is a pointer owned by Willie Circe, of Carson City, Nev. The dog is only two years old, but before he was much more than a puppy his young master had discovered that he always trotted whenever hitched up. One day Circe raced with and passed his father's trotting stallion Black Prince, on the main street of Carson City, much to the elder Circe's discomfiture, and from that day to this the fame of Nevada's trotting dog has waxed greater and greater. Neither dog is allowed to trot more than half a mile at a time.—New York Mail and Express.

A Painter's Memoirs.

The memoirs of Delacroix, the painter, written between 1845 and 1863, are in the press. They are in the form of a diary. Few persons know of their existence. Dumas fils was one of the few, and long tried to get them into his possession. After Delacroix's death they passed into the hands of his devoted friend, and studio assistant, Andrieu kept the diary as a relic, thinking that publication would be desecration. He died a short time ago, and his widow took the manuscript to another of Delacroix's pupils to ask what she should do with it.

A meeting of the author's heirs was called. They decided on publishing and appointed a Mr. Flit to edit the manuscript. What gives it so much artistic value is the great number of marginal and other illustrations of the text. The frankness with which the author speaks of the men, women and events of his time makes excision obligatory. Delacroix is as frank about himself as about his friends, many of the children and grandchildren of whom are still living.—Paris Cor. London News.

The Onyx Quarries of Arizona.

There are now on exhibition at the Institute of Building Arts about thirty specimens of onyx from the recently discovered deposits in Arizona. Until the discovery of the Arizona quarries the only source of supply of this stone was in the La Pedrera mines in the state of Puebla, in old Mexico. Specimens from the Arizona deposit show that the stone can be obtained in this country in a size suitable for architectural purposes and of the finest quality. While the Mexican deposit was only three acres in extent originally, and is now practically exhausted, the Arizona quarries cover about 300 acres.

The specimens on exhibition show infinite variety in color and take the highest polish. The exhibit consists of thirty odd slabs about one inch thick and varying from four to twelve square feet in area. The Arizona deposits are located about twenty-seven miles southwest of Prescott, and a branch railroad has already been projected.—Chicago Times.

Novelties in Railroad Signals.

An important experiment in the way of signaling railroad trains is being made on the Pennsylvania railroad at Wilkensburg. An illuminated blade or semaphore, which promises to do away with the colored light signals, is being tried. The blade is somewhat the shape of the present one in use, and is designed to be attached to any interlocking signal.

Its use lies in the fact that the colored light is abolished, and removes all danger from breakage of the colored glass and the consequent confusion of signals to the engineer. The new contrivance throws the rays of a white light at different angles, which form the signals.—Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

She Came Down.

A Holyoke expressman went to move a piano belonging to a family named Andrews, the instrument being attached for debt. Mrs. Andrews wept and entreated and finally climbed on the piano and sat upon it, daring the expressman to take it. He went right along with his work, however, saying he would take piano, woman and all, and rather than ride aloft through the street in that fashion she finally came down from her perch.—Springfield Homestead.

War on the Sparrows.

The members of the Sparrow club at Rickling, which is situated in the north-west corner of Essex, have destroyed upward of 1,000 sparrows since last fall. Several of them have been fined for not killing the number they are bound by the rules to destroy according to the extent of their holdings, one paying as much as sixteen shillings.—London Tit-Bits.

A Marvelous Clock.

A clock 35 feet square and 40 feet high will be one of the Australian exhibits at the World's fair. It will probably be the most wonderful astronomical clock ever made, the various dials showing the position of the planets and their satellites.—New York Journal.

At the May meeting of the French academy there were thirteen candidates to fill one vacancy—historians, critics, poets, dramatists and men of science. Seven ballots were taken without result as no candidate secured more than ten votes.
